

Is the world better because business schools are in it?

We're AACSB — and we have led business education for 110 years.

We know the power of exceptional business education.

It shapes leaders.

It shapes decisions.

It shapes the world.

The schools that reach our standards turn ambition into action.

Their research tackles the greatest problems facing society.

Ending hunger.

Delivering clean energy, affordably.

Addressing environmental crises.

And their teaching develops leaders who shape society for the better.

AACSB accreditation ensures schools stay true to their mission, delivering quality education with real-world impact.

AACSB Global Standards for Business Education™ give every school a benchmark for which to aspire.

Those who already meet them are blazing a trail so bright they're transforming the way we live and work.

Building better businesses starts with better business schools, building the next generation of great business leaders.

Is the world better because business schools are in it?

Undoubtedly.